INNOVATIVE LEADERSHIP

*guiding the way
for nearly a century*

For 90 New Years, our brand has helped clients create beautiful lives in homes filled with elegant, on-trend styles. Though colors, fabrics, and lifestyles may have changed, our innovative mindset remains as constant as our commitment to quality and craftsmanship.

But how we innovate goes beyond the material items that make up our Classic, Country & Coastal, and Modern lifestyles. This innovation is found in the values we live by every day and can be seen and felt in all that we do—with our world-class designers who devote their time and talents to giving you the best personal service coupled with the latest design technology, and how we as a company have taken a stand to support sustainability through environmentally responsible manufacturing and operations.

As advocates for social responsibility, we see this innovation shining through our efforts to champion fair labor standards and economic opportunity for artisans around the world. Our leadership exudes exceptional innovative talent: 72% of the leaders in our retail network, including regional, territory, market, and Design Center leaders, are women.

To us, innovation is a style, a sentiment, a way of life. May you find all the innovative elegance you seek within the pages of this magazine—I know it will bring much joy as you refresh your home for 2022.

Happy New Year to you and yours,

supporting innovation through SUSTAINABILITY

Worldwide deforestation is one of the greatest threats to our climate. Yet within the hardwood forests of America's eastern region—specifically, within the 344 counties of the Appalachian region—you'll find one of the world's greatest environmental success stories.

Since 1950, Appalachian forests have added 65% more hardwood trees thanks to sound forestry management techniques that reduce erosion, protect wildlife habitats, and promote reforestation. It's within these forests that Ethan Allen sources much of the hardwood—principally oak, cherry, and maple—that we use to craft wood furniture in our North American workshops.

We are Verified Sustainable and Legal by Appalachian Hardwood Manufacturers Inc. (AHMI), which means that our suppliers meet strict environmental and forest management standards.

For every tree that our suppliers harvest, approximately 2.4 trees are planted to replace it.

In addition to banking trees for the future, we work to make sure that nothing we harvest goes to waste. In our Vermont workshops, rather than discarding leftover sawdust and wood chips, we use them as a green fuel sources to cogenerate electricity.

Our commitment to responsible forestry and renewable energy has helped us reduce our carbon footprint by approximately 30% over the past decade. Doing the right thing isn't usually considered innovative, but in today's business climate, it can be.

CRAFTSMANSHIP

rooted in innovation

From rough-sawn to refined piece, it takes patience, pride, and skills passed down from the innovative craftspeople before us to get the handcrafted details of our wood furniture exactly right.

Whether we're working with wood that we've milled ourselves in Beecher Falls, Vermont, or from lumber inspected by our National Hardwood Lumber Association (NHHLA) certified team in Pine Valley, North Carolina, every piece of maple, cherry, birch, and oak is kiln-dried in our very own ovens.

Hardwoods like maple dry in three or four weeks; oak can take as long as a year. We never rush the process because using wood with the perfect moisture content helps to keep the wood in your finished furniture from splitting or cracking.

We fit carefully chosen boards together by hand to construct our rough-sawn tabletops. We attach legs to tables with mortise-and-tenon joinery and fit drawers together with dovetail joinery. To complete each piece, we sand wood surfaces and apply each layer of the finish by hand.

By pairing hands-on dedication with the most advanced, innovative woodworking technology, we endeavor to work faster and smarter without sacrificing the extraordinary hand-craftsmanship that has been our hallmark for generations.

TECHNOLOGY powered by INNOVATION

Sometimes you have a thought, but you just can't put it into words. Sometimes seeing what you don't like first brings clarity about what you do. With our 3D Room Planner design technology, you have the luxury of letting your wildest dreams lead the way—and the benefit of seeing it all in living color.

Let us map out your space and customize it with accurate measurements, considering doors, windows, and architectural features unique to your room. We'll lay it out in a way that makes traffic flow smoothly while creating a sense of harmony and balance.

We'll add furniture, shown in our most popular fabrics and finishes, and finishing touches, like artwork and décor. Every pixel will come together before your very eyes as a high-definition re-creation of what your new space could be.

Once your room is designed, we can show you a top view 2D floor plan as well as 3D images of your proposed design. We can also send you a link to your finished space, so you can take a photorealistic 3D walkthrough.

Come experience the power of innovation, including the flexibility to work with a designer here, there, or anywhere you desire.
